I spent money here today intentionally. Why?

- To support our local farmers, small businesses, and/or markets to boost our local economy.
- If we do not support local producers, then we become totally reliant on multinationals for our food supply. The international food supply chain can be shut down at any time
- Did you know that some governments (i.e. Canada and Holland) are seeking to restrict the use of nitrogen-based fertilizers which would have a significant impact on crop yields and farm financial viability?
- Local produce is often healthier, and fresher, and more thought goes into the products.

Supporting local businesses can be inconvenient, and sometimes more expensive...but what if it's worth it? www.reignitefarming.com

I spent money here today intentionally. Why?

- To support our local farmers, small businesses, and/or markets to boost our local economy.
- If we do not support local producers, then we become totally reliant on multinationals for our food supply. The international food supply chain can be shut down at any time
- Did you know that some governments (i.e. Canada and Holland) are seeking to restrict the use of nitrogen-based fertilizers which would have a significant impact on crop yields and farm financial viability?
- Local produce is often healthier, and fresher, and more thought goes into the products.

Supporting local businesses can be inconvenient, and sometimes more expensive...but what if it's worth it? www.reignitefarming.com

I spent money here today intentionally. Why?

- To support our local farmers, small businesses, and/or markets to boost our local economy.
- If we do not support local producers, then we become totally reliant on multinationals for our food supply. The international food supply chain can be shut down at any time
- Did you know that some governments (i.e. Canada and Holland) are seeking to restrict the use of nitrogen-based fertilizers which would have a significant impact on crop yields and farm financial viability?
- Local produce is often healthier, and fresher, and more thought goes into the products.

Supporting local businesses can be inconvenient, and sometimes more expensive...but what if it's worth it? www.reignitefarming.com

I spent money here today intentionally. Why?

- To support our local farmers, small businesses, and/or markets to boost our local economy.
- If we do not support local producers, then we become totally reliant on multinationals for our food supply. The international food supply chain can be shut down at any time
- Did you know that some governments (i.e. Canada and Holland) are seeking to restrict the use of nitrogen-based fertilizers which would have a significant impact on crop yields and farm financial viability?
- Local produce is often healthier, and fresher, and more thought goes into the products.

Supporting local businesses can be inconvenient, and sometimes more expensive...but what if it's worth it? www.reignitefarming.com

I spent money here today intentionally. Why?

- To support our local farmers, small businesses, and/or markets to boost our local economy.
- If we do not support local producers, then we become totally reliant on multinationals for our food supply. The international food supply chain can be shut down at any time
- Did you know that some governments (i.e. Canada and Holland) are seeking to restrict the use of nitrogen-based fertilizers which would have a significant impact on crop yields and farm financial viability?
- Local produce is often healthier, and fresher, and more thought goes into the products.

Supporting local businesses can be inconvenient, and sometimes more expensive...but what if it's worth it? www.reignitefarming.com

I spent money here today intentionally. Why?

- To support our local farmers, small businesses, and/or markets to boost our local economy.
- If we do not support local producers, then we become totally reliant on multinationals for our food supply. The international food supply chain can be shut down at any time
- Did you know that some governments (i.e. Canada and Holland) are seeking to restrict the use of nitrogen-based fertilizers which would have a significant impact on crop yields and farm financial viability?
- Local produce is often healthier, and fresher, and more thought goes into the products.

Supporting local businesses can be inconvenient, and sometimes more expensive...but what if it's worth it? www.reignitefarming.com

I spent money here today intentionally. Why?

- To support our local farmers, small businesses, and/or markets to boost our local economy.
- If we do not support local producers, then we become totally reliant on multinationals for our food supply. The international food supply chain can be shut down at any time
- Did you know that some governments (i.e. Canada and Holland) are seeking to restrict the use of nitrogen-based fertilizers which would have a significant impact on crop yields and farm financial viability?
- Local produce is often healthier, and fresher, and more thought goes into the products.

Supporting local businesses can be inconvenient, and sometimes more expensive...but what if it's worth it? www.reignitefarming.com

I spent money here today intentionally. Why?

- To support our local farmers, small businesses, and/or markets to boost our local economy.
- If we do not support local producers, then we become totally reliant on multinationals for our food supply. The international food supply chain can be shut down at any time
- Did you know that some governments (i.e. Canada and Holland) are seeking to restrict the use of nitrogen-based fertilizers which would have a significant impact on crop yields and farm financial viability?
- Local produce is often healthier, and fresher, and more thought goes into the products.

Supporting local businesses can be inconvenient, and sometimes more expensive...but what if it's worth it? www.reignitefarming.com

I spent money here today intentionally. Why?

- To support our local farmers, small businesses, and/or markets to boost our local economy.
- If we do not support local producers, then we become totally reliant on multinationals for our food supply. The international food supply chain can be shut down at any time
- Did you know that some governments (i.e. Canada and Holland) are seeking to restrict the use of nitrogen-based fertilizers which would have a significant impact on crop yields and farm financial viability?
- Local produce is often healthier, and fresher, and more thought goes into the products.

Supporting local businesses can be inconvenient, and sometimes more expensive...but what if it's worth it? www.reignitefarming.com

I spent money here today intentionally. Why?

- To support our local farmers, small businesses, and/or markets to boost our local economy.
- If we do not support local producers, then we become totally reliant on multinationals for our food supply. The international food supply chain can be shut down at any time
- Did you know that some governments (i.e. Canada and Holland) are seeking to restrict the use of nitrogen-based fertilizers which would have a significant impact on crop yields and farm financial viability?
- Local produce is often healthier, and fresher, and more thought goes into the products.

Supporting local businesses can be inconvenient, and sometimes more expensive...but what if it's worth it?

www.reignitefarming.com

